

Calling for Teachers

What is Centre For Learning?

Centre for Learning, (www.centreforlearning.org) is a voluntary, not-for-profit organization based in Secunderabad that attempts to impact the lives of all its teachers, children and parents – enabling them to maximize their potential and live a more meaningful life.

The organization attempts to provide an environment where children can learn without fear or coercion. Children are allowed to and encouraged to think critically and express their opinions with honesty, without hesitation. We attempt to help them grow to be self motivated and independent learners who are sensitive, responsive socially and to the environment in which they live. The Centre also works to build capacity of teachers from other government and private schools.

Work

We are looking for persons who are keenly interested to work with children with patience, sensitivity in a way where education becomes a joyful and meaningful experience for the learners. This would involve understanding children's social, emotional and family circumstances and needs and working with them intensely, with determination to make a difference to their lives and towards a meaningful change in the society. In addition there is also scope and opportunity to engage with adolescents and young adults in building awareness on social and environmental issues.

Profile

She/He should be at least a graduate with proficiency in English and a working knowledge of Telugu/Hindi or both.

She/He should be open to learn on the job and think critically about conventionally held views about education and schooling.

She/He should be able to teach at least two subjects from English, Telugu, Science and Social Sciences and have some skills to conduct co-curricular activity classes. Interest and ability to engage in drama, art, music with children would be of added value.
